

J.P. MORGAN CODE FOR GOOD HACKATHON (the “Code for Good Hackathon”)
OFFICIAL RULES

ELIGIBILITY: The Code for Good Hackathon is open to (i) students enrolled in a full-time course, who are undergraduates and (ii) who are 18 years of age or older on the date of application and graduating in 2020, 2021, and 2022. A team’s application will be void where any candidate or applicant is ineligible or where such application is prohibited or otherwise restricted by law. All relevant Hong Kong laws and regulations apply.

ABOUT THE EVENT: Teams of four to seven (4-7) students will compete against each other on behalf of a charity assigned to them by JPMorgan Chase Bank – Hong Kong Branch, in order to provide a technological solution to a problem that the charity faces (“Hackathon”). The team or teams which, in the opinion of J.P. Morgan Chase Bank – Hong Kong Branch (“JPMC”), demonstrate(s) the best attempt at developing such a solution will receive a prize. The prize shall be for the winning team and shall be shared or used as the winning team shall decide in their discretion. JPMC takes no responsibility for the allocation of the prize amongst team members. All prizes are awarded “as is” and JPMC, to the fullest extent permitted by law, makes no warranty or condition in respect of any prize or part thereof. JPMC reserves the right to change any prize at its discretion. The Hackathons will take place over a period of October 5, 2020 – October 11, 2020 and will be conducted virtually. Specific date and time information will be shared with you during the confirmation process.

All submissions and entries and any intellectual property contained therein will become the exclusive property of JPMC and will not be acknowledged or returned. By entering the Hackathon, entrants accept and agree to be bound by these Hackathon Official Rules (the “Rules”) and the decisions of the judges, which shall be final, binding and conclusive on all matters. In particular, the health and wellbeing of each team member is extremely important to JPMC. If you require an accommodation for a medical condition, please contact JPMC Security, in good time, prior to the date of the Hackathon. To the fullest extent permitted by law, JPMC hereby disclaims any liability relating to any injury arising from a pre-existing medical condition or a request for any requisite facilities and any subsequent injury, illness or harm arising from such condition or lack of facilities.

To enter the Hackathon, check with your University placement office on the application method.

PRIZES: One (1) prize between HKD 2400-3600 will be awarded each individual member of the winning team for the overall Hackathon (a minimum number of four (4) and a maximum of seven (7) team members), limited to one (1) prize per person. Taxes, if any, are the sole responsibility of each winner.

PRIZE CONDITIONS: All prizes are awarded “AS IS.” JPMC makes no warranty with respect to any prize or any part thereof. JPMC is not responsible for prize quality or utility. No transfer or assignment of the prize is permitted and the cash equivalent of the prize will not be substituted except at the sole discretion of JPMC. JPMC reserves the right to substitute a prize with another prize of equal or greater value if the stated prize should become unavailable for any reason.

GENERAL: Submission of an entry does not guarantee participation in the Hackathon. JPMC is not responsible for incomplete, lost or misdirected entries or entries received after the deadline. JPMC is not responsible for transmission defaults, computer server failure and/or delayed, garbled or corrupted data transmissions or for any communications that do not arrive due to entrant’s e-mail security settings or restrictions imposed by entrant’s internet service provider. Participants who are provisionally accepted for the Hackathon will be sent a notice to the e-mail address in their entry form and will be required to confirm receipt of such notice and attendance at the Hackathon. In the event confirmation is not received by the date requested in the notice form, the participant will be notified that they are no longer invited to attend the Hackathon and the invitation will be passed to another participant.

Potential winners will be selected on the final day of the Hackathon. The potential prize winners will be announced at a virtual gathering, with virtual access details to be provided. Each winner will receive his/her prize upon the completion of the Hackathon, subject to verification.

In consideration of your participation in the Hackathon, you agree to contribute any and all intellectual property and proprietary rights in and to the software, code, designs, materials, documentation, concepts, workflows and any other items you write, create or develop in respect of your participation in and to the Hackathon and related activities, including without limitation any incomplete, partial, or draft software, code, designs, materials, documentation, concepts, workflows and any other items (“Works”) into open source, under a project governed by a BSD or MIT license. You hereby undertake that everything you develop, write and create in your participation in the Hackathon is your own work and is not the work of any third party (except a team member or where you submit open source code or software). You further agree that you will keep confidential all information of a confidential nature or which is proprietary to JPMC, which is disclosed to you under or pursuant to the Hackathon, and not disclose it to any third party.

JPMC’s policy is to comply with all applicable privacy laws and regulations in connection with the Hackathon. You agree that JPMC may share your personal information, including but not limited to your name and email address, with JPMC’s third party vendor, solely for the purpose of providing you access to the platform through which the Hackathon will be conducted. JPMC will not, for any additional purpose, pass on any of your personal information that you have shared with JPMC to any third party without your prior consent.

By entering the Hackathon, you agree that your name, photo, likeness, voice recording, and photos and videos taken of you at the Hackathon may be published on the JP Morgan intranet page and used by JPMC and participating charities generally, including, by way of example but not limitation, on the internet, in print and in broadcasts, to publicize the Hackathon, without additional compensation or permission, except where prohibited by law. You further agree that you will participate in related publicity and to the use of your name and likeness for the purposes of such related publicity and to advertise your assigned charity.

JPMC’s decisions in respect of all aspects of the Hackathon, including, without limitation, participation in the Hackathon and the award of prizes, are final, and no correspondence will be entered into in that regard or for any other related reason.

To the extent that JPMC’s performance of any of its obligations pursuant to these Rules is prevented, hindered or delayed, directly or indirectly, by an event beyond its reasonable control, JPMC is and will be excused from any further performance under these Rules or in respect of the Hackathon. To the fullest extent permitted by law, JPMC will not be liable for any claim in respect of indirect loss, loss of profit, loss of a business opportunity, economic loss or any special or consequential loss arising out of any act or omission committed by JPMC hereunder. Further, all participants/team members pursuant to these Rules agree to release JPMC and its parents, affiliates, subsidiaries, officers, directors, agents, employees, and all others associated with this Hackathon, from any and all liability with respect to, or in any way arising from this Hackathon, including liability for personal injury, damage or loss.

These Rules and any contractual or non-contractual obligations arising out of or in relation to them or the Hackathon shall be governed by and construed in accordance with the laws of Hong Kong. All disputes arising out of or in relation to these Rules or the Hackathon or any non-contractual obligations arising out of or relating to these Rules or the Hackathon shall be submitted to the exclusive jurisdiction of the courts located in Hong Kong, and you agree and submit to the jurisdiction and venue of such courts.

You agree that your participation in the Hackathon does not automatically give rise to an employment relationship with JPMC or the non-profit.
